THE STANDARDS MOVEMENT: A RECENT HISTORY

Jessica Van Cleave and Sarah Bridges-Rhoads Rewrite the Common Core for Tomorrow’s Literacies

Metaphors, Frames, and Fact (Checks) about the Common Core
Anne Whitney and Patrick Shannon

Eamon Cunningham Explores Opportunity Costs of the Common Core in High School ELA

How Have We Been Standardized? Let Me Count the Ways
Susan Arpajian Jolley

Nadia Behizadeh Enacts Problem-Posing Education through Project-Based Learning

Education Reform and Potemkin Villages: Expanding Conceptions of “Data”
Noah Asher Golden

Tim W. Watson and Pamela J. Hickey Rediscover the Art of Oral Argument

YA Literature We Need
Laura Renninger

Coming Teacher's Standards
Monique Cherry-McDannell

And Much More...
ENGLISH JOURNAL
Vol. 104 No. 2 • November 2014

7 Call for Manuscripts
11 From the Editors
Julie Gorlewski and David Gorlewski
13 High School Matters
Curiouser and Curiouser: A Brief Reflection on Standards
Jocelyn A. Chadwick

THE STANDARDS MOVEMENT: A RECENT HISTORY

17 EI in Focus
The Common Core Memorandum of Understanding: What a Story
Mercedes K. Schneider

22 The End of Innovation
Stephen Heller
This article explores questions about the ability for an assessment-driven approach toward education to foster creative, vibrant classrooms.

27 A Call for Subterfuge: Shielding the ELA Classroom from the Restrictive Sway of the Common Core
Chris Gilbert
This author discusses how ELA instructors must practice subterfuge and resist standardization by using Personal Standards.

34 Opportunity Costs of the Common Core in High School ELA
Eamon Cunningham
This article offers strategies for adjusting in-class curriculum to align with the CCSS, and how to increase fluency with the demands of standardized tests.

41 Rewriting the Common Core State Standards for Tomorrow’s Literacies
Jessica Van Cleave and Sarah Bridges-Rhoads
These authors highlight the push for reading the CCSS as a living document like any other, open to interpretation and creative implementation.

48 Teacher Perspectives and Classroom Changes during the Standards Movement
Marcia Glaus
This article restores a voice to those teachers who do the important work of educating students in classrooms, highlighting the changes taking place during standardization.

54 From English Language Arts Teacher to Literacy Expert: Reimagining Our Roles
Amy Lannin, Angela Kohnen, Katie Kline, Nancy Singer, Valorie Stokes, and Amy Knowles
This article chronicles work that is focused on content-area writing, as stressed in the CCSS, and partnered language arts teachers with career/technical educators.

61 Metaphors, Frames, and Fact (Checks) about the Common Core
Anne Whitney and Patrick Shannon
This article interrogates some metaphors that CCSS proponents have used as arguments to characterize CCSS, and then checks the facts that others have amassed around the issue.

72 Revisiting Dewey in the Age of Common Core: Confessions of an Unwilling Deconstructivist
Anne Peel
This author argues that NCLB has pressured writing teachers to underserve developing writers by replacing inquiry with an emphasis on product.

continued
80 How Have We Been Standardized? Let Me Count the Ways
Susan Arpajian Jolley
This article examines, both personally and historically, the deleterious effects of the decades-old movement toward standardization of both students and teachers.

86 Teaching Equity through Gatsby in the Age of CCSS
Allisyn Mills and Seungho Moon
Influenced by CCSS, the authors provide options for teachers who share the need to design curriculum to incorporate more perspectives in the classroom.

93 Coming Full Circle: A Young Teacher’s Journey with the Standards Movement
Monique Cherry-McDaniel
This article details a teacher’s journey from having an unhealthy relationship with the standards to redefining herself as a professional and using the standards to support sound instruction.

99 Enacting Problem-Posing Education through Project-Based Learning
Nadia Behizadeh
This article promotes project-based learning in English education as a way to combat the loss of cultural relevancy under the pressures of standardization.

105 The 2013 Honor List: Fiction Filled with Real Information
Don L. F. Nilsen, James Blasingame Jr., and Alleen Pace Nilsen
Can deep reading into fictional worlds provide insight into our real-life experiences? Texts selected for the 2013 Honor List indicate that the answer is resoundingly affirmative.

POETRY

16 My Kind of Slo(w)
Patricia O’Connor

26 A Problem, Solution Paper
Greg Overman

40 the archeology of white people
P. L. Thomas

71 the kindness school (beyond the archeology of white people, pt. 2)
P. L. Thomas

92 Write It! (Like Disaster)
Lynn Doyle

COLUMNS

113 Speaking Truth to Power
“Not the Time . . . to Follow the Line of Least Resistance”
P. L. Thomas

115 Soft(a)ware in the English Classroom
Education Reform and Potemkin Villages: Expanding Conceptions of “Data”
Noah Asher Golden

118 Disabling Assumptions
Differentiating Writing, Reading, and How We Respond to Writing
Patricia A. Dunn

121 Lingua Anglia: Bridging Language and Learners
Vir Bonus Dicendi Peritus: The Art of Oral Argumentation
Tim W. Watson and Pamela J. Hickey

124 Carpe Librum: Seize the (YA) Book
LGBTQ Stories We Need to Hear Now
Laura Renzi